会议一：“一带一路”促进沿线国家基础设施建设发展

The world faces an infrastructure investment gap. According to widely reported statistics, the estimated global demand for investment in infrastructure each year amounts to US$3.7 trillion, with only around US$2.7 trillion of this being met annually (World Economic Forum, 2013). A McKinsey Global Institute Report found that globally, there is a need to invest an average of US$3.3 trillion annually in economic infrastructure in order to support currently expected rates of growth through to 2030. Emerging economies are projected to account for some 60% of that need.

2013年世界经济论坛发布的数据显示，预计全球每年对基础设施投资的需求为3.7万亿美元，但每年只有约2.7万亿美元的投资资金到位，这表示目前世界面临着基础设施投资的缺口。麦肯锡全球研究所发表了一份报告：在全球范围内，为了达到目前预计到2030年的增长率，平均每年需要投资3.3万亿美元在经济基础设施上，新兴经济体将占这一需求的60%左右。

会议四：农业&食品安全

International investments in agriculture have the potential to offer a broad range of social, economic, and environmental impacts. As a development tool, they can create jobs; provide rural infrastructure; connect smallholders to global markets; introduce new productivity-enhancing technologies; and improve access to finance for farmers. Close partnerships between international investors and national governments are key, however, to ensure that new outside funds sources do not distort local markets or leave local producers and smallholders at a disadvantage.

国际农业投资对社会、经济和环境具有重要的战略意义和深远影响。作为一个开发工具，农业投资可以创造更多就业机会、提供农村基础设施、帮助农民与国际市场联系起来、引进农业新技术，提高生产力、提供农民融资渠道。但是，为了防止新的外部资金来源扭曲当地市场和让当地生厂商和小农处于劣势地位，国际投资者与国家政府之间的紧密合作是关键。

Sustainable investments can also enhance food security indirectly, through rising rural incomes, which may also improve access to more nutritious diets and improved food utilisation.
